Special Issue of the Vienna Yearbook of Population Research

“Effects of migration on demographic change and population composition in Europe”

(Guest editors: David Coleman and Dalkhat Ediev)

Dear colleague,

In December 2008, the Vienna Institute of Demography held its annual conference focusing on the effects of migration on population structures in Europe. We are pleased to inform you that the Editorial Board of the Vienna Yearbook of Population Research decided to produce a special issue of the Yearbook dedicated to the topic of this conference, which, however, will not be limited to papers presented at the conference.

David Coleman from Oxford University and Dalkhat Ediev from the Vienna Institute of Demography kindly agreed to serve as guest editors for this special issue.

We invite you to submit a paper to the Special Issue of the Vienna Yearbook of Population Research, “Effects of migration on demographic change and population composition in Europe” planned to be published in December 2009.

Submissions must be original, previously unpublished, manuscripts and meet the requirements of the Vienna Yearbook of Population Research (http://www.oeaw.ac.at/vid/download/Guidelines_for_Authors.pdf).

The deadline for submissions is 15 April 2009.

Please send your paper and enquiries to populationyearbook@oeaw.ac.at

All submissions will be subject to international peer review. As the publishing schedule is rather tight, early submission will facilitate completing the reviewing process in time.

Vienna Yearbook of Population Research is available in both printed and electronic format; all the published articles are accessible at <http://www.oeaw.ac.at/vid/yearbook/>

We would appreciate if you could also disseminate this Call for Papers to colleagues who might be interested in making a contribution.

We look forward to receiving your submission!

Editorial Board and guest editors of the Vienna Yearbook of Population Research
